D&B Engineers and Architects, P.C. (D&B) has been responsible for the successful preparation and approval of solid waste management plans for numerous authorities, counties and towns in New York and New Jersey. In the aggregate, these documents provide for the long-term management planning needs of a waste shed that generates over 15,000 tons per day.

D&B, in concert with elected and appointed officials, legal and financial co-consultants, and special discipline subconsultants, has served as the prime consultant in the preparation of these plans. In addition to the overall plan development, D&B has been directly responsible for the compilation and analysis of all demographic, technical, environmental and economic data; waste stream analyses; identification and analysis of alternatives; and the development of the short and long-term plans.

D&B prepares plans for clients with the comprehensive analyses necessary to develop solid waste management programs that are reliable and economic, and which also receive the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (NJDEP) and New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (NYSDEC) plan approval.
